KIRBY HILL PARISH.

Wensleydale and Petty Sessionsal Division of Halliford—Electoral Division of Wath—Poor Law Union of Great Ouseburn—County Court District of Richmond—Rural Deanery of Boroughbridge—Archdeaconry of Richmond—Diocese of Ripon.

This parish, sometimes called Kirby-on-the-Moor, lies on the north bank of the river Ure or Yore, which here separates it from the parish of Aldbrough in the West Riding. Its total area is, according to Ordnance Survey, 3,395 acres, and the number of its inhabitants, 563. It includes the townships of Kirby Hill, Langhorpe, and part of Humburton and Milby. The parish is wholly agricultural, the soil fertile, and the scenery pleasingly diversified with woodslands. It is intersected by the Boroughbridge and Knaresborough branch of the N.E. railway, which joins the main line at Pilmoor Junction.

The township of Kirby Hill has an estimated area of 1,163 acres, and is valued for rating purposes at £1,300. With the exception of 2a. 1rd. 32pr. of glebe land, the whole township is the property of Miss Elizabeth Bawson, of Nydd Hall, near Leeds, who is also the owner of all the manorial rights. The village stands on an eminence from which extensive views of the surrounding country are obtained. It is distant about one mile N. of Boroughbridge. On a hill near the village is Skelton Wind-mill, from which can be seen 16 churches, the cathedrals of York and Ripon, the castles of Crayke and Sheriff-Hutton, and the Hambleton hills. The ground on which the mill stands, and two small strips of land on the declivity, formerly belonged, it is said, to the parish of Kirby Hill, and local gossips thus account for their transference to the neighbouring parish of Skelton. Many years ago the body of an unknown man was found here. The burden of burying the corpse rested with the parish within which it was found.
